Way to TROYES

Sightseeing tour of the Old Town of TROYES When viewed from above, the old centre of Troyes is shaped almost exactly like a champagne cork. It is for this reason that locals refer to the old part of the city as the Bouchon de Champagne (French for "champagne cork"). In fact, this characteristic shape is a vestige of the past, the result of successive transformations of the city. It is a story that begins with the outline of the Gallo-Roman city, involves successive diversions of the River Seine, and ends with the erection and subsequent demolition of the ancient fortifications.
